SECURED FULL LOAD.

Sch. Richard Wainwright Sails for Home Tomorrow.

EARLIEST CARGO ON RECORD.

Has Frozen Herring from the Bay of Islands.

A despatch received by Mr. Orlando Merchant, this morning from Bay of Islands, N. F., states that sch. Richard Wainwright has a full load of frozen herring and will sail for home tomorrow.

Last year the first cargo of frozen herring arrived here December 24, in sch. Golden Rod, Capt. Dominick Arseneau, after a stormy passage of eight days from Bay of Islands, N. F.

With any kind of a decent chance along the Wainwright should be here in seven or eight days and thus bring the earliest cargo of frozen herring for many years if not the earliest on record.

Sch. Annie M. Allen sailed from Philadelphia for this port yesterday.

Sloop Albert Baldwin, from the east, sailed from Portsmouth, N. H., for Rockport, yesterday.

BEAUTIFUL SWORD.

Taken from Swordfish To Be Presented to the Massachusetts Commission.

One of the finest specimens of a sword taken from a swordfish is on exhibition in the barber shop of Mr. M. Prady Nunes. The weapon was given its usual immersion in pickle to remove all odors, and then it was scraped, carved and ornamented. The hilt has been carved and protected, the decorations being of gilt. Just below the hilt, a swordfish has been painted, but the remainder of the blade is in the natural color but polished.

The sword was prepared in its present state by Mr. Joseph Oliver, an employee of the Fish Commission hatchery on Ten Pound Island. He proposes to present it to the Massachusetts Fish and Game Commission, and it will be taken to Boston, by Deputy Warden William W. Nixon, and formally presented to Capt. J. W. Collins on his next visit to the Hub.

Fancy Herring.

A handsome cargo of herring is that of the steamer Alice M. Jacobs, Capt. Sol. Jacobs, now landing at Stanwood's wharf. Captain Sol. with his accustomed enterprise has set the pace on handling a cargo of this fish. Procuring a supply of white ground Trapani salt of highest grade, and by curing none but selected live fish, he has shown that a fat herring properly handled is a food for the epicure. This cargo is now being discharged with Captain Sol's usual snap, and his steam winches put them on the wharf in a way that makes the hand tackle of the sailing craft seem a trifle slow. It was reported that owing to the size of this cargo, it would be divided among a number of smokers, and we so reported in our last issue. This is an error, as Messrs. Stanwood & Co. take the entire cargo.

There will be stock for some ten thousand (10,000) boxes of fancy bloaters in the lot, nearly half of which are already sold to be delivered as soon as smoked. Our representative who saw some of the goods today in smoke houses did not wonder at their rapid sale. It was noticed that all care possible was used in curing, each fish going through several baths of hot and cold water before being dried and smoked.
